

Brunel Older People's Reference Group (BORG)

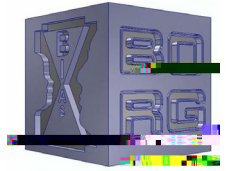

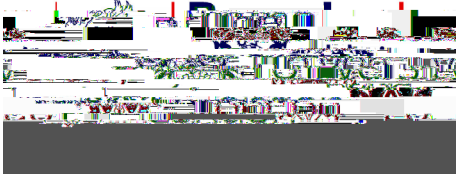

The Ageing Group is an important research group at Brunel University where many researchers are interested in various aspects of ageing. Our aim is to investigate key issues for the large proportion of the population who are aged 50 and over.

Brunel Older people's Reference Group (BORG) is a database of people aged 50 and over who are interested in finding out about and supporting our research. This could be through participation in research projects, but also listening to talks or giving feedback on project ideas and research priorities of our researchers at Brunel.

If you choose to join BORG you will be sent information and invitations for Brunel public events and research projects. You are free to respond to any invitation that interests you but there is no obligation to take part if you would rather not. You may ask for your name to be removed from the database at any time. We will not send you more than one postal letter per month. We send emails whenever we have something online that you might be interested in. (No more than 3 emails per month max)

If you decide to join BORG, your name, address and contact number will be kept securely with access restricted to a small team. Any Brunel researcher wishing to contact people on the database will need to contact Elmar Kal, BORG Academic Lead and Anna Liddle, our Interdisciplinary Research Officer, to send out information or invitations on their behalf. You can contact us on BORG@brunel.ac.uk

Your information will never be shared with third parties.

It is up to you to decide whether or not to join BORG. If you decide to take part, please complete the form below with your details. Alternatively, you can sign up online here.
